FINANCE DEPARTMENT.

ACCOUNTS AND FINANCE—MISCELLANEOUS.

No. 1414-P.

Bombay, the 26th October 1914.

MEMORANDUM.—By the Government of India, Finance Department.

The rise in prices in India, though in evidence from an earlier date, began to attract general notice from about the year 1907. In 1910 the Government of India decided to undertake a full and detailed investigation of the problem, and the task was entrusted to Mr. Datta, a senior and experienced officer of the Finance Department, assisted by Mr. Pradip Chatterjee, late Professor of Economics at the Dacca College, and Mr. W. D. Gupta of the Finance Department. Mr. Datta was instructed to take throughout British India, to collect and analyse the relevant statistics, to ascertain the causes of both the official and non-official scarcities, and to report his conclusions to the Government of India. The specific points referred for investigation were—

(1) What has been the actual rise in prices in India during the past fifteen years? Has the rise affected all commodities alike or is it specially marked in the case of food grains? Are there marked differences in respect of enhancement of prices in various different areas?

(2) To what extent is the rise in prices due to what may be styled "world factors," and how far may it be ascribed to local conditions?

(3) Does it appear that the rise is a permanent feature or is it only temporary?

(4) If it be more or less permanent, what are the probable economic effects on the country as a whole, and on the different sections of the community?

5. Mr. Datta was placed on special duty in 1910. His report was received in 1913, and the outstanding voluminous statistics, on which it is based, were finally ready by April 1914. The Government of India desire to place on record their appreciation of the care and industry which Mr. Datta and his assistants brought to bear on their arduous task. The report, with its statistical appendices constitutes an almost complete survey of the progress achieved during the past 22 years. It brings together, and classifies the interrelation of, a mass of statistical material, drawn from a wide variety of sources, and discussing the many varied conditions of the country. Whatever view may be taken of the conclusions reached in regard to individual cases arising out of the facts of reference, area of which inevitably involve controversial points of economic theory—the point as a whole work is recognized as a very valuable contribution to the recent economic and financial history of India.

6. The general course of prices is indicated in the following table, taken from page 37 of the General survey of prices, which exhibits the voluminous average wholesale prices, during the years 1890 to 1913, of different groups of articles, for the 22 more or less homogeneous economic districts into which, for the purpose of the report, Mr. Datta has divided India exclusive of Burma and the Native States. The figure 100 expressed in this table the average wholesale price of each group of commodities for the years 1890 to 1891, which have been selected by Mr. Datta as the standard or base period for the purpose of estimating the fluctuations in the price levels, and the prices of each group in the different years are accordingly shown as percentages of this figure.

* Wholesale prices have been used for the purpose stated by Mr. Datta on page 32 of the report, viz., that they are more uniform than retail prices in reducing different and local conditions, and that retail prices in India are not based on their movements generally with wholesale prices. Hence the end of selecting is extremely small.

4. It will be seen from the above table that—

(3) Apart from a slight rise in 1938-1939, the price level was fairly steady from 1930 to 1935. With a seasonal demand for produce, a large part of India, the general urban middle-classes to 1900 or 1920 and 1930 or 1935. The run was previously confined to food grains, other articles of food and offshoots. Agricultural conditions were generally favourable in the two following years, and food grains fell to about the level of the base price. There was a considerable rise, however, under 1936 and above about the level of the base price, and the annual level stood at 100 in 1936 and at 124 in 1937.

(2) With the advent of logging activities in Northern Idaho, the Central Provinces and Bembury Mountains' pine level rose again in 1900 to 127. The grass-forest increase was greatest under both grasses and oaks, but was shared by almost all classes of vegetation. In the following three years, the prices of food grains and cereals fell slightly; the index numbers for 1906 being less than that average of the base period. Hides and skins and building materials continued to rise. The price of timber (cedar) rose to 131 in 1904; and that of iron ore (year after a fall in 1897-1901, to 128). The country's cost index in 1904 at about the averages of the years 1890-1899.

(5) From 1908 to 1909 prices rose rapidly and continuously. The general level rose to 126 in 1909, to 129 in 1908, and 133 in 1907. The highest point (147) was reached in 1908 when female codfishes prevailed in Northern India. The general average fell in the next three years, but that in 1911 was only eight below the figure of 1908. The rise during this period extended to almost every kind of mercurialis.

Particular observations: The 20 of the present, exhibiting the paleoanthropological average, were members of the population (various periods, including that the increase in prices in the years 1950-1952) and building materials, which have been at all periods, or at least in the 1950-1952 period, and the 1950-1952 period. The 20 of the present, exhibiting the paleoanthropological average, were members of the population (various periods, including that the increase in prices in the years 1950-1952) and building materials, which have been at all periods, or at least in the 1950-1952 period, and the 1950-1952 period. The 20 of the present, exhibiting the paleoanthropological average, were members of the population (various periods, including that the increase in prices in the years 1950-1952) and building materials, which have been at all periods, or at least in the 1950-1952 period, and the 1950-1952 period.

6. The report analyses income details for the 1980-1991 period. Comparing the general average of prices in the six years 1980-1991 with those for the basic period (1960-1979), the average price increases (before 33 per cent) are shown by the price levels (Karnali) and in Annapurna, where prices in the earlier years were amongst those the general level (the rise has been greatest (35 per cent and over) in Karnali, parts of Madhya, Rann, Sindh, Dhangra Deccan and the Punjab). In the quinquennium 1989-1991 the increase has been most marked in the Punjab (40 per cent), Madhya (38 per cent), Karnali (37 per cent), the Dhangra Deccan (35 per cent) and, over, in Karnali, Barmahelkar, Sindh, Sindh, South Madhya, the Punjab and the Dhangra Deccan; in the United Provinces, the North-West Frontier Province, the Punjab, Madhya and Sindh and in Annapurna (below 33 per cent); in the period 1980-1989 the increase was least marked in the Punjab, the United Provinces, the North-West Frontier Province, Madhya and Sindh and in Annapurna. The percentage index, it is noted, is the average of the annual averages. Owing to the different strides during the years studied, the index is not comparable with the base period. Tables as a whole, the prevalent statistics demonstrate strikingly the extent to which the development of communities has tended to equalise across throughout the country.

2. As will be shown later, the relative importance of causes which may be classed as peculiar to the Middle East of causes which fall rather under the head of world influences, has varied greatly in the past. The former predominance, and the latter have been on the whole the dominant factor is the

13. Mr. Datta's main statistical results, as far as this question is concerned, are presented in the following table (page 84, paragraph 112), which compares the growth in population with that in the area under cultivation, and in the production of food grains. The figures have reference to the official year ending on the 1st March, and the average of the first quinquennium is denoted by the figure 189, the figures for the years which follow being expressed as percentages of this—

|--------------------------------------|--|--|--|--|---------|---------|
| Population | 100 | 101.6 | 105.9 | 109.7 | 127.8 | 131.5 |
| Total area under cultivation | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 |
| Area under food grains | 100 | 98 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 |
| Production of food grains | 100 | 98 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 |

As Mr. Datta, however, is careful to point out—page 54 (paragraph 138) and page 228 (Appendix II, paragraph 11)—the data from which this table has been constructed are, with the exception of the population statistics, largely conjectured and approximate. For the immense areas of Bengal, Bihar and Oude, for about one-third of the United Provinces, for the hill tracts in the United Provinces, and in Assam, it may be added for the Native States, which, though included by Mr. Datta, must legitimately be ruled out of account—neither the area under cultivation nor the area under food grains is known with any accuracy; and for such areas Mr. Datta had no alternative but to base his statistics of cultivation on area as his arbitrary assumption. Further, attempts to estimate the total returns of agricultural produce, even when the area is definitely ascertainable, are beset with insuperable difficulties. The actual yields per acre, the fertilization of all such estimates, are necessarily extremely variable. These yields have been varied from time to time—there has been some revision even since Mr. Datta's report was written—but the figures are still far from satisfactory, and the Government of India have, and for some time under consideration the substitution of a much reliable agency for the conduct of the investigation from which the yields are ultimately derived. The remaining factor in the calculation, the percentage of the party cultivators in the several, is a still more uncertain quantity, resting as it does on district returns, which are little more than loose conjectures, vitiated in particular by a constant bias in the direction of under-estimation. Finally, the whole area of forest, comprising elements of every degree of utility, has to be related by a complicated process of averaging and weighting, and it is evident, from a study of the detailed results that have, but, considerable further difficulty has been experienced with respect to such average methods employed.

In such conditions, the wonder comes from the statistical standpoint is to dispose with the superficial and misleading appearance of exactness, and to consider what inference are suggested by a less ambitious enquiry, which confines itself to the more trustworthy of the available statistics.

14. The following table shows the total average under cultivation and the population during the period 1890 to 1912, in the tracts for which relatively accurate returns are procurable, viz., parts of Assam, the United Provinces exclusive of the hill districts, the Central Provinces and Berar, the Punjab, the North-West Frontier Province and the Bombay Presidency*—

Except during the quinquennium 1890-94 to 1899-1900, the figures for which reflect the results of repeated and severe famines, the area under cultivation has expanded more rapidly than the population.

* (1) No figures have been calculated for the United Provinces. In one-third of that Presidency, as explained in paragraph 12, no accurate data are available. For the remaining two-thirds, as, however, the figures are sufficiently correct for each year taken by itself, but cannot be used for the purpose of a comparison extending over a series of years, owing to the gradual extension of the reliable statistics, which in due season to progress of statistical work in regard to population statistics.

(2) Certain small areas in the Bombay Presidency, for which statistics are not available in all the quinquenniums, have been omitted. A corresponding deduction has been made in the population figures.

(3) The figures of population in the Indian quinquenniums have been calculated by the method of using either on the assumption of equal annual increases.

Excluding again the families quercuparum 1895-98 to 1898-1900, this table exhibits an almost perfect parallelism between growth of population and extension of food subculture; and the only interpretation which the figures can bear is that the correspondence between the two has been satisfactorily maintained.

And, and, of course, however, are not the only factors involved. An additional factor of special importance is the great development of communications already referred to, and its considerable effect in increasing the "elasticity" of any given aggregate of food production. This principle, which is a basic law of human policy, is also applicable to the conditions of supply in animal years, and its bearing on the creation of food supply must not be overlooked.

[illegible]

18. In the first place, strictly speaking, there has been no substitution of one food for another in the country as a whole. The food cultivation area has grown, though the area under commercial crops has increased, to a higher proportion; and the more rapid expansion of the cultivation of yams and cotton in certain areas cannot, in view of the very small proportion of the total area which these crops occupy, have exercised any appreciable influence on the general level of food prices.

Secondly, even as an intuitively statistical sentence is verifiable, it would appear that the more understood one has increased in almost each sense, the more the growth of population – a fact which can be said to help the production of the average of a relatively larger and more efficient food supply, in view of the huge crops do not, however, cover the whole ground, as information is relating to average for large areas; and, partly for this reason, and partly owing to the delusive character of the information available regarding the other factors involved, no really valuable networks of the system derive the needed round review and be formed.

Thirdly, as experts report of feed gains, Mr. Datta has clearly brought out (pages 44-47, paragraph 14) the relative insignificance of the proportion between feed inputs and feed production.

Finally, analysis of the general statistics in respect to the increase of prices shows the very significant point that there was an extensive upward movement of food prices all after 1964. Even in 1969, very shortly after a large temporary increase definitely attributable to inflation of the ruble, food prices had returned to practically the level of the base period 1959-1964; and in 1970 they fell below the 1959-1964 level and increased only in comparison to this year, which is more than twice as much in the case of a number of other commodities, must be sought for in a different and independent group of circumstances.

39. The point-batch mentioned leads up to a discussion, the fundamental importance of which, though not entirely overestimated in the report, has been overshadowed in the latter: to deal with the question of food prices as a well-considered problem. The conclusion is that, according to Mr. Buzuk's analysis, the price levels in the history of the country since 1918 have been characterized by a sharp increase in the value of a widely different medium. From 1918 to 1924 internal conditions were the principal factors in the deterioration of the price level. Prices rose and fell in the main in accordance with changes in the agricultural conditions from year to year. The only articles which show a significant rise during this period are hides and skins, the prices of which are governed by those prevailing

20. That there has been during the last 25 years a remarkable growth in the general prosperity of India is a fact recognised by all informed observers, and testified to by all the available statistical evidence. The volume of foreign trade has grown enormously. The quantities of goods carried by sea rose from 32 million tons in 1880 to 46 million in 1895, and 71 million in 1911. The number of passengers by sea increased from 114 million in 1880 to 210 million in 1905, and 309 million in 1911. The value of money value landed rose from a mere 10 lakhs in 1880-81 to 50½ lakhs in 1895-96, and 44½ lakhs in 1911-12; and the fresh deposits in Savings Banks from 2 lakhs in 1880-81 to 44½ lakhs in 1895-96 and 9 lakhs in 1911-12. The absorption of gold has been of late on an exceptionally wide scale, amounting between 1900 and 1911 to no less than 116 million sterling, as against 27 million sterling in the preceding 25 years. Great strides have been made in the manufacturing and mining industries. The production of iron and steel rose from 18,400 tons in 1880-81 to 224,718 tons in 1911-12, and 4,800,000 tons respectively in 1912-13, and 4,800,000 tons in 1913-14; in jute mills from 28,400 and 204,718 to 32,000 and 577,000; and in woolen mills from 800 and 20,000 to 775 and 90,000; whilst the production of coal has almost doubled since 1880. But the most striking evidence perhaps of the improving condition of the people is to be found in the statistics of the export of articles of luxury and ornaments such as diamonds, pearls, opals, beads and stones, watches and soap, which increased by 28 per cent. between the years 1880-81 and 1895-96, and by 74 per cent. between 1895-96 and 1911-12. On all sides there are indeed signs of a higher standard of living.

21. That the rise in prices has contributed to this result is indicated both by the comparatively more rapid expansion under the same conditions since 1895, and by analysis of the statistics of foreign trade. A country generally benefited by any general demand for its exports, and as has been shown, the demand for Indian exports has expanded immensely since 1895-96. Against the grain is the distribution here to be seen the increased cost which India has had to pay for her imports; but Mr. Dutta estimates (page 124-126, paragraphs 535 and 536 of the report) that, allowing for the increase in the cost of imports, the actual gain to India through the enhanced prices obtained for her exports amounted during 1900-1901 to 1904-05 to 74 crores, during 1905-06 to 1909-10 to 147 crores, and during 1910-11 and 1911-12 to no less than 212 crores. It is impossible in the face of these figures to doubt that India as a whole has benefited by the rise in the price level, since 1895. It is a matter of greater difficulty to measure the resulting gain or loss to different sections of the community. Adequate data do not in fact exist for any precise and minute measurement of changes in real income or real savings. Comparisons between the prices of goods produced or wages earned, and the prices of goods most commonly consumed, furnish, however, a rough index of the share of the rise in prices on the various classes.

22. The most important section of the community are the cultivators, who comprise, according to the census of 1911, (Volume I, Part II, Table 3), more than half the total population. As a rule cultivators grow their own food, and by increasing themselves the change in their real income resulting from the rise in prices, consequently, has to be made between their expenditure as measured by their expenditure for such as food, clothing, wages and commodities produced, and their income as measured by the prices received for produce sold. The general conclusion to be drawn from this comparison is unambiguous. On the income side, in the quinquennium 1906-1910, the wholesale price of rice rose by 40 per cent. above the level of the base period 1896-1898, that of raw cotton 40 per cent., of hides and skins 58 per cent., of oil seeds 46 per cent., of food grains (wheat) 43 per cent., and of food prices (wheat) 40 per cent. On the expenditure side, cotton manufactures, the largest item in the actual expenditure of the cultivator, rose only 25 points, the cost of salt fell by 3 per cent. apart from the reduction of the general rate of duty from 18 to 10-0 to 10-0-0 a maund, while iron rose 70 per cent., and sugar 5 per cent., while besides all these no great increase. The movements of prices have varied greatly in different areas, and as regards the different classes of cultivators. On the whole, as measured by their cash value, there is doubtless a proportionate rise in the price of goods, but such rise in general have lagged behind prices; whilst the enhancement of land revenue in various areas, so far as attributable to the rise in prices, has been comparatively small. Wages have risen more rapidly even than prices. But, on the balance, the gain in real income is small.

23. The valuable wage tables prepared by Mr. Dutta point to a great improvement in the condition of the wage-earning population. The collection of reliable statistics of wages has always been a matter of great difficulty in India; and Mr. Dutta's figures do not in all respects agree with those of the wage surveys carried out in the years 1911-1915. There is no reason to doubt, however, that they represent with sufficient accuracy the broad trend of wages. In many countries wages have only slowly advanced, due to the rise in prices; and the necessary adjustments have been attended with much social friction. But in India circumstances have favoured the wage advance. The increasing profits of agriculture, which, as shown in Mr. Dutta's report on the census of 1911 (Volume I, paragraph 533) have enhanced the demand for labour on the land, the demand for labour on public works, the expansion of the factory industry already referred to, and in parts the marketing from villages have combined to promote a great and rapid increase in wages during recent years.

24. Agricultural labourers still constitute the largest section of the labouring population. For many reasons changes in the real income of this class are peculiarly hard to measure. Payment on kind is still common; there are great variations in the continuity of employment; and in parts

* It is important not to overstate the economic effects of prices which, though a gross index, suggested only the small percentage of the total decline in the value of the goods and services which were actually consumed. Out of 125 million deaths reported in British India between 1900 and 1915, not less than 7 million deaths were attributed to plague.

† The report only says in table of monthly wage estimates of this subject in paragraph 11, page 10, of the report—“(2) In August 1911 the average daily wage of a coolie in the district of Dacca was 12½ annas.”

‡ The report states that the mortality in the town of Dacca in 1917 was 1000 per 1000. It should have been added that the population of this town was only 6,000 in that year, and that in general India is exposed to the plague.

§ The report states that “in the Black Death of the 13th century, there had been some such mortality before, but it was not so bad as the Black Death of 1347.” The Government of India are not aware that authority exists for this statement.

hereafter or customary obligations affect the rate of remuneration. But the statistics, compiled by Mr. Datta, of such wages paid to independent labourers indicate roughly the general movement of earnings since the base period. As compared with this period, cash wages, by 1913, had nearly doubled. Where any allowance has been made for the disturbing factors above alluded to and the real or prices, Mr. Datta's estimate (Volume III Statistics, page 235) of an increase of 58 per cent. in real wages in 1913, as compared with the base period 1900-1901, seems fully justified.

26. Equally or still less remarkable has been the rise in the real earnings of general labourers and artisans in villages, where there are no mines. The statistics show advances in real wages ranging from 77 to 84 per cent. since the base period. The case of factory labour, however, is more complicated. Wages in factories were in the earlier years above the general level; the rate of increase has accordingly been smaller, and has varied much, both as between different industries, and as between factories of the same kind in different provinces. In the absence of detailed factory budgets, which Mr. Datta found it impossible to prepare, and of information as to periods of unemployment and overtime, no exact comparison of nominal and real wages can be made. Wages, however, have been paid more regularly in all factory industries since 1903, and it seems fairly certain that in the jute, wool, leather and spinning industries, in the paper industry and a whole, and in the cotton mills of Calcutta, the United Provinces and the Central Provinces, they have risen more faster than the rate of living. In the cotton mills of the Bombay Presidency, however, where wages in the base period were higher than in other parts, and are still relatively high, and in those of Madras, it is doubtful whether the rise in money wages, considerable though it has been of late, has fully kept pace with the rise in prices.

27. Wages on railways exhibit similar variations. In Sind, Gujarat, and in the Bombay Division, where in the base period they rated high, wages have possibly lagged behind prices of food. But on the whole the wage earners on railways seem to have secured increases in pay more than proportional to the increase in the cost of living. The same is true for the most part of domestic servants.

28. In the case of the upper and middle classes, material is lacking for any but the most general estimate. The considerable expansion in the income-tax receipts suggests, what indeed would seem to be obvious, that for the working community the period has been one of growing prosperity. Collating propositions here undoubtedly established, with the case of landlords it has to be remembered that, if some have risen less rapidly than prices, on the other hand, as indicated by Mr. Datta on page 144 (paragraph 24V) of the report, "the share of the enormous profits taken by Government in the export business" has been a comparatively small part of the total increase which has accrued from the rise in prices. Persons in fixed incomes have generally suffered, and it is Mr. Datta's opinion that the professional classes too have been adversely affected, but the circumstances of that section of the community do not appear to have been made the subject of detailed statistical consideration. It may be observed, however, that in the case of the lower paid Government servants, civil and military, various measures in the direction of increased pay have been taken of recent years.

29. It has been shown that the prolonged rise in Indian prices dates from the year 1901, and that its ultimate origin must be sought in causes which have been operative throughout the civilised world. As the growth of communications with India has tended to equalise prices throughout the country, so the parallel development of communications with foreign countries has tended more and more to bring Indian prices into line with those of the world as a whole. The prices of Indian exports are governed, by their proximity to the world's markets, and through the growing influence of foreign trade, to the same extent from temporary fluctuations resulting from the character of the seasons, tend to follow the same course as world prices. The problem of the future course of prices in India is one therefore in which an isolation can be found in the analysis of its own conditions only. It is essentially bound up with the question of the movement of prices throughout the world. Prices have so far shown no sign of ceasing to fluctuate. As regards the future, the factors involved, even under normal conditions of evolution, are too numerous, too complex, and too interrelated in their operation to warrant any definite and confident prediction; and the normal course has now been interrupted by the catastrophe of armed war, the total effect of which upon the highly organised western system of production, trade and finance it is quite impossible to forecast.

From the marks assigned to Candidates in each subject such deduction will be made as the Civil Service Commission may deem necessary in order to secure that no credit be allowed for merely superficial knowledge.

Consistently with the limitations specified above Candidates are at liberty to name any of the foregoing subjects, provided that the maximum number of marks that may be obtained from the subjects chosen is limited to 4,000. If this maximum is exceeded by a Candidate's selection he will be required to indicate one of his subjects, the marks for which should, in his case, be reduced so as to bring his maximum marks within the permitted limit. The marks so reduced will be subject to a correspondingly reduced deduction.

However, if a Candidate's handwriting is not easily legible a further deduction will, on that account, be made from the total marks otherwise accruing to him.

4. A list of the competitors shall be made out in order of their proficiency as disclosed by the aggregate marks fairly awarded to each competitor, and in that order so many competitors, up to the determined number of appointments, as are listed by the Civil Service Commission to be qualified by examination, shall be designated to be favoured Candidates for the Civil Service of India, provided that they appear to be duly qualified in other respects. Should any selected Candidate become disqualified, the Secretary of State for India will determine whether the vacancy thus created shall be filled or not. In the former case the Candidate next in order of merit, and in other respects duly qualified, shall be deemed to be a selected Candidate.

5. Selected Candidates, before proceeding to India, will be on probation for one year, at the end of which time they will undergo an examination, called the Final Examination, in the following compulsory subjects (a):—

| | Marks |
|---|-------|
| 1. Indian Penal Code | 400 |

| 3. The Indian Evidence Act | 200 |
| 4. Indian History | 400 |
| 5. The principal Vernacular Language of the Province to which the Candidate is assigned | 400 |

(a) It is notified for general information that the number of marks deducted for bad handwriting may be made up to the total of 4,000 marks by the selection of the subject of the Final Examination in the subject of the Civil Service of India.

In view of the importance of legible handwriting in the public service, Candidates are warned that the premium as to deductions for bad handwriting in these examinations will be strictly enforced. Sanskrit Language and Literature.—Translation from Sanskrit, composition in Sanskrit; Sanskrit Literature, including the life, thought, and erudition of Ancient India, together with such knowledge of history as bears upon the subject; questions on the Sanskrit Language (including questions on Philology).

Composition will be required in Classical Sanskrit alone; elsewhere Telugu Sanskrit is also included.

Candidates are expected to make a special study of the Sarvath Mandala of the Rig-Veda, but other Vedic hymns may also be set in the examination.

In the one Candidates will be expected to show a general acquaintance with the career of English Literature, as represented in the chief writers in verse and prose, between the reign of Edward III. and the death of Queen Victoria.

A minute and detailed knowledge will not be looked for in this part of the Examination. But it is to be test how far the Candidates have studied as first hand the chief productions of the greatest English writers, and are acquainted with the leading characteristics of their thought and style, and with the place which each of them occupies in the history of English Literature.

The other part of the Examination will relate to one of the following periods, which will follow each other by year in rotation.

P. NIDARSHIMUNDARAN,
Assistant Registrar.

AUDIT ORDER BY THE HON'BLE DAVAN BANAMTHI L. D. SWAMINATHAN PILLAI:
AVANATH, M.A., F.C.S., F.R.S., REGISTRAR OF CO-OPERATIVE SOCIETIES, CHENPAUR, MADRAS.

The accounts of the Madras Central Urban Bank, Limited, for the year ending 30th June 1914 were audited in detail by the Assistant Registrar M.A. D. Swaminathan Pillai, Esq., A.C., statements showing (1) Receipts and Disbursements, (2) Profit and Loss for the year, and (3) Assets and Liabilities as they stood on 30th June 1914, have been furnished by him.

2. During the year under review, the Bank earned a net profit of Rs. 25,418-8-5. Under by-law No. 17 of the Bank, one-fourth of the net profit, viz., Rs. 12,365-10-8 should be added to the credit of the Reserve Fund. The Bank is requested to insert this sum in the Bank of Madras, Madras. With this addition, the total reserve of the Bank will amount to Rs. 79,927-10-2. The remaining three-fourths, viz., Rs. 42,042-14-2 will be available for distribution as dividend, bonus or otherwise as the Bank may decide.

3. The transactions of the Bank are larger in volume than those of the previous year. The deposits held by the Bank (including the overdraft from the Madras Bank) rose from Rs. 25,28 lakhs on 30th June 1913 to 28,15 lakhs on 30th June 1914. The interest profit on borrowings during the year was Rs. 1-12 lakhs against Rs. 1-40 lakhs in the previous year. Loans advanced to customers during the year were Rs. 2-10 lakhs against Rs. 2-07 lakhs in the previous year and these repaid by them were Rs. 4-17 lakhs against Rs. 3-66 lakhs in the previous year. The amount of loans due from customers and members was Rs. 27-05 lakhs at the end of the year 1913-14 against Rs. 22-81 lakhs in the last day of the previous year. The Registrar is glad that some of his suggestions made last year have been given effect to by the Directors.

4. The amount of reserves being pending recovery on the last day of the year 1913-14 was Rs. 9-27 lakhs against Rs. 1-40 lakhs at the end of 1912-13. The total interest collected during the year was Rs. 1,454 against Rs. 672 in the previous year.

The Registrar seriously invites the Directors of the Madras Central Urban Bank to consider the question of curbing arrears from customers. The Government Inspecting Staff is doing its best to keep down arrears, but so far all efforts on the part of the Registrar to secure effective co-operation from the Bank in this matter have proved unavailing. The loanest arrears due by the Bank are analysed to a fair estimate and the Bank would do well to maintain a staff of inspectors for the purpose of effecting at an early date the clearance of these arrears. The Registrar is prepared to render all the assistance in his power to such a staff but it is too much to expect that with the increased transactions of the Bank and amid the pressure of other work, the Government Inspectors should direct the more exclusive attention to the collection of the Bank's dues. The Registrar has drawn attention to the administrative aspect of the increasing difficulty of the situation and trusts that the Bank will take the matter seriously into consideration.

A memorandum by the Assistant Registrar who audited the Bank's accounts will be communicated to the Bank for its remarks and consideration.

The Standard Barometer and Thermometers are read at 8 A.M., 10 A.M., 4 P.M., and 8 P.M., and the daily means are obtained by the application of hourly corrections, derived from hourly "zero" observations. The station of the Barometer is twenty-two feet above the level of the sea, and the position of the Rain Gauge is two feet from the ground. The wind, rain and general weather are registered for the current Civil Day—from midnight to midnight.

The total quantity of rain collected since January 1st in 1864 is 10.00 inches, the average due for the same period being 41.50 inches.
